IPS STUDENTS TO LEARN SPORT OF CRICKET IN 2013

The Indianapolis Public Schools (IPS) has announced that it will launch a cricket program this winter, becoming the first Indiana school district to launch cricket in all of its school physical education classes.

Students will be introduced to the game during the second semester of classes and cricket will also be encouraged as an after school activity in the spring.

“As a district we are excited to launch the cricket program. This will provide another great opportunity for teachers and the students to have another piece to add to our curriculum for all students to learn and enjoy,” said Kathy Langdon, Program Director for Indianapolis Public Schools.

ICYA will host a teachers-only clinic in January for District physical education teachers and after school directors. This training will provide cricket coaching skills and educational tools for use in the classroom.
